Triabunna, the gateway to Maria Island National Park, is a short drive from Orford. This is a town rich in local history—take the self-guided Discovery Walk from the Triabunna Visitor Centre to see the town's preserved convict-era buildings, visit the Tasmanian Seafarers Memorial, or stop in at the Visitor Centre to view the collection of tapestries depicting Triabunna's history, development and culture.

Take a stroll in the local coastal reserves—including Pelican Walk, which begins near the marina—or go fishing, sailing or boating in Spring Bay. And make sure you visit a local seafood producer to sample local blue mussels and scallops, grown in the east coast's deep, cold offshore waters.

Maria Island National Park is a short boat journey from Triabunna. Take a day or more to visit this extraordinary island, which combines World Heritage-listed convict history with abundant native wildlife and diverse natural landscapes.

TRIABUNNA

Triabunna sits at the edge of sheltered Spring Bay and is fringed by beaches, coastal reserves, hills and forests.

Originally established as a garrison town for the penal settlement on Maria Island, Triabunna is now the departure point for passenger services to Maria Island National Park.
